Why He Nominated Taylor.

To the Editor of The Evening Star: In your editorial comments of yesterday on the appointment by the President of Hon, C. H. J. Taylor to be recorder of deeds for this District you were, I think, a little severe in charging the President with making this appointment from a personal rather than a political motive. Mr. Taylor is a big man in politics in Kansas City, Mo. I think he told me sometime ago that he weighed 198 pounds. Your statement that "he cuts a small figure in this matter" are, perhaps, not cognizant of the fact that but for the colored democratic vote of Kan-sas City, Mo., and of the country for that matter, which Mr. Taylor carries in one of his vest pockets, Mr. Cleveland would not have been "in it" at the last presidential Cleveland is said to have recognized the services rendered him by Mr. Taylor, and to have promised him the recordership of to have promised him the recordership of deeds therefor. How, then, can this appointment be regarded as a personal favor bestowed upon a hungry and deserving and loquacious candidate, when all the facts go to show that Mr. Taylor saved the party from defeat on that fateful November day by holding the colored democrats in line and voting them solidly for Cleveland and reform, Now, Mr. Editor, you haven't got a vote in this District and you ought not attempt to influence the Senate against this worthy candidate the Senate against this worthy candidate for the recordership, whom the President has selected from a feeling of political, not personal gratitude, to hold down the job, and the black democratic legions until the next deal, when if success perchas more the deal, when, if success perches upon the banner of democracy, Brother Taylor will prebably get the English or Austrian mis-sion.

The program was opened with the rendition of the descriptive plano with the rendition of the descriptive plano piece, "On the Race Course," by Prof. and ness of the society for the season, Mrs. Murray. In the comedietta Cousin Jedediah Miss Lena Murray appeared in a red damask satin dress, which one of her aficestors were at a ball given aboard the good ship America in New York harbor in 1783. Prof. Murray's distinguished Donni-thorne Waltz was played by Miss Dot Dobson, Master Burnham doing a violin obligato. One of the pleasantest pieces of work was done by Mr. Carleton Emmerson Snell in his recitation, "The Parley of the Kings." The "Blue Bells of Scotland" was sung by the following named little girls: Miss Gertle Hilton, Miss Jennie Horn, Miss Bessie McCathran, Miss Flora Austin, Miss Lena Murray, Miss Alice Donn, Miss Dot Dobson, Miss Irene Stratton, Miss Maggie Garden, Miss Emma Harrison, Miss Ethel its perfect development, no matter how Dony, Miss May Campbell. A resolution that was the cause of a lengthy and spirited debate had the signa-tures of J. T. Murray, J. M. Sheridan, J. W. Gray, S. B. Fredway, W. W. Strayer and R. S. Rowe attached. In effect it was that there shall be no traffic on Sundays on camp grounds, or the adjacent territory protected by laws of the state.

The managers and other officers of camp meeting shall not bargain for, or reissue, either directly, or indirectly, any benefits from money paid by railroads or owners of conveyances, as a consideration for conveying persons to or from camp grounds or the vicinity thereof on Sundays. From the divided manner in which the resolution was received by the meeting, some spirited scenes will undoubtedly ensue before the matter is finally disposed of.

As the hour of adjournment had arrived, the discussion went over until this morning. The conference communion services were held in the evening, when the entire time was occupied in receiving the holy feast. In addition to the delegates, a number of the church members took the holy commu-

Haydn, the composer of "The Creation," that the world is indebted for the wealth and wind, 77 quartets for strings, 20 concertos for piano, 31 concertos for various other instruments, 38 trios for piano and strings, 53 sonatas and divertissements for piano, 4 sonatas for piano and violin, 14 masses, 1 Stabat Mater, 8 oratorios and cantatas, 19 operas, 42 canons for voice in two or more parts, 175 pieces for baritone and an innumerable collection of other works. The tunefulness which dominates Haydn's compositions is, as a well-known critic remarks in a review, worthy of the study of many more modern composers. This writer recounts that Haydn once said to Michael Kelley, the great English tenor of that day: "It is the tune that is the charm of music, and it is that which is most difficult to produce." The writer remarks sareastically that in the present day it must be that "tune" is exhausted to be compared to the control of the control o or is more difficult to produce than for-merly. In "The Creation" is embodied a fair exemplification of Haydn's conception of the requisite regard for "tune," and the coming production of that work by the Choral Society April 11 at Convention Hall will be a notable event, in the artistic manner of its rendition as well as in the intrinsic value of the subject. "The Creation" has not been heard here since 1881. The rehearsals for that work are progressing finely under the direction of Prof. Josef Kaspar, and the chorus work will be in every way satisfactory. At the re-hearsal last Monday President Daniel gave an encouraging statement as to the manner in which the tickets were being sold and then introduced Dr. Frank T. Howe, the new member of the board of directors, who complimented the society upon the work they were doing, praised the members for the high standard that had been set and expressed the belief that it would not be long before the musical organizations of Washington would have a building which they could call their own. An extra rehearsal has been called by Prof. Kaspar an encouraging statement as to the manehearsal has been called by Prof. Kaspar it Typographical Hall tonight and it is toped that there will be a full attendance. Next Monday night will be the last regular rehearsal and it will also be the last regular meeting of the society for the season,

AMUSEMENTS. Albaugh's-Creston Clarke had a good house at Albaugh's last night, his performance in "Hamlet" having evidently stimulated a desire to get further acquainted with his abilities as a tragic star. While Hamlet may be regarded as an almost supreme test of a young actor's intellectual qualities, the role of Shylock, which Mr. Clarke presented last night, calls into demand more of that skill which, while almost entirely in the line of physical energy, requires much patient training for keen the artist's perception of the require-ments may be. The characterization which Mr. Clarke gives is an intense one, a picture of passionate revenge that leaves a strong impression on the mind. Miss Martha Ford played the part of Portia in a careful and intelligent manner. Tonight Mr. Clarke appears in "Richelieu."

The National—Mr. Felix Morris and his admirable company appeared last night at the New National Theater in those two well-known dramatic gems, "The Old Musician" and "The Paper Chase." Hand Organs Again.

To the Editor of The Evening Star: In one of Longfellow's volumes is an account of the sufferings of John Kreisler, a German musician, from listening to discordant music. He says there was an ancient law forbidding those who followed any noisy handicraft from living near literary men, and he thinks that this same law should favor musicians and banish out of their neighborhood all ballad singers and bag pipers.

He says: "Cotton in one's ears is of no use; one still hears the dreadful massacre. And then the idea—the bare idea—'Now they are going to sing, now the horn strikes up'—is enough to send one's sublimest thoughts to the very devil."

Did John Kreisler live in the District in these days of head of the live in the District in these days of hand organs his condition would be pitiable, and if one more torment could be added to Dante's Inferno it would surely be obliging some poor wretches to listen to a hand organ. HARMONY. Sale of fifty shares of Pacific Building

MT. PLEASANT CITIZENS.

It Will Present a Perfect Performance Business at the Regular Meeting Last Night.

At the Congregational Church, Mt. Pleasfilled last night with an audience deep- like many others with much harmony with- ant, the regular monthly meeting of the in, had much discord without, and spent Mt. Pleasant Citizens' Association was held torical prize contest, an annual event the greater portion of his married life last evening. The meeting was an exceedof which the theological department apart from the spouse of his early years. ingly brief one, the only business done beof the university makes much. There Perhaps it is to the fact of this isolation ing the authorization of the special committee on street railways to wait upon the of composition which he left to it-125 District Commissioners for the purpose of symphonies, 30 trios for strings and strings requesting the Commissioners to report the Washington traction railway bill back to Congress either favorably or unfavorably, and to urge them to see that the people of Mt. Pleasant and other suburban sections were provided with better facilities for reaching the city.

In the absence of President Somerville,

Secretary Exley called the association to order, and on the motion of Mr. Davis, Mr. W. L. Cole was chosen president pro tem. After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and approved Mr. Wm. R. Green was elected a member of the as-Under the call of reports from special committees Mr. Davis reported that the special committee on schools had nothing to report at present, although it was doing everything possible to secure the insertion by the Senate District committee of th n providing for a new schoolhouse for Mt. Pleasant, which in the House of Representatives had been stricken from the bill, and it was believed that it would be

Mr. Chapin Brown, from the special committee on street railways, reported that the committee had united in a memorial to Congress, urging that Mt. Pleasant and other suburban sections of the District be provided with better railway facilities, not favoring any particular road, but endeav-oring to impress upon Congress the urgent necessity existing for additional railway communication between the suburban dis-tricts and the city, and the committee was of the impression that Congress had at length realized that such necessity existed and would do all it could to provide facilities. But it appeared that the Com-missioners of the District had not only pigeon-holed the Washington traction railway bill, but also seemed disposed to pre-vent action by Congress on any suburban railway bill which was opposed to the least extent by down-town residents. He, therefore, moved that a committee be appointed to wait upon the Commissioners for the purpose of requesting them to report the Washington traction bill, now in their hands either feverably or unfavorably that hands, either favorably or unfavorably, that the bill might be promptly disposed of in Congress. Unless that was done, he believed that the bill would not be reported during the present session of Congress.

Mr. Davis moved as a substitute that the special committee on street railways, Messrs, Chapin Brown, E. W. Woodruff, F. L. Campbell, A. H. Nixon and C. L. Ricketts, be instructed to call upon the Commissioners for that purpose, and the substitute was adopted. There being no further business before the meeting, an adjournment was bad.
